

Do you want your work, project or business to reach a wider audience?

Do you want to be part of a new, innovative community of people keen to share knowledge, and promote our wetlands and rivers?

Riverspace brings research, practice and our enjoyment of wetlands and rivers together in the one place, truly being ... a place for wetlands, rivers and people.

RIVERSPACE CATEGORIES

Biodiversity, Community involvement, Environmental watering, Food and wine, In-stream habitat, Managing livestock, Riparian revegetation, River research and management, Tourism — is one of these part of your space?

RIVERSPACE is a joint project between the not-for-profit Australian River Restoration Centre (ARRC) and the Murray Darling Wetlands Working Group Ltd (MDWWG).

RIVERSPACE is independent and fully funded by the ARRC and MDWWG. It is staffed by a professional and experienced science communication team and uses a sophisticated and well-known Google map interface. Riverspace is inclusive, dynamic and designed to grow. It is affordable, providing self-managed options through to a full management service.
